UNIVERSAL® Sealed Lead-Acid Batteries High DC Voltage Disclaimer

Due to the absolute electrical isolation that must be established and maintained to assure the safety of high voltage DC applications, UPG recommends that not more than eight Universal® 12V sealed lead-acid ("SLA") batteries or 100 VDC be connected in one circuit. Before and after installation, always exercise extreme care to identify any possible breach in the case of any SLA battery connected in a series. It is the responsibility of each user to determine that their application is adequately designed with safety features to be compatible with any and all conditions that may arise during the use of their application, and in conformance with all existing electrical code standards and requirements. Under no circumstances will UPG be liable for consequential or incidental damages arising from the use of Universal® SLA Batteries.
