TEA TYPES

STASH HERBAL TEAS

Herbal teas do not come from the Camellia sinensis bush and therefore are not 'true' teas. Herbal teas are made of grasses like lemongrass, barks like cinnamon, fruits like orange peel, flowers like chamomile and hibiscus, and many other botanicals.

Our herbal teas should be brewed with 190-209 degree water and steeped 3-5 minutes.

STASH BLACK TEAS

Robust, full-bodied, and bold – such characteristics describe the taste and appeal of black tea. When brewed, black tea typically yields a hearty, amber cup—think the Assams of India or the smoky Lapsang Souchongs from China.

Brew black teas for 3-5 minutes at 190-209 degrees.

STASH OOLONG TEAS

Oolong tea is between black and green tea in color and taste. China and Taiwan are the main producers of oolong tea.

Oolong tea should be brewed with water between 160-180 degrees for 1-3 minutes. Some oolongs can be infused multiple times.

STASH GREEN TEAS

Green tea has a delicate yet distinctive taste, and can be almost colorless in the cup to pale green or golden. Some green teas have a vegetal taste that is highly desired by green tea lovers.

Green teas should be made with slightly cooler water, between 170-190 degrees. Typically, green teas should be steeped for only 1-3 minutes.

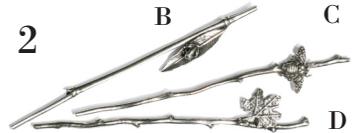

STASH WHITE TEAS

White tea typically has a lighter, more delicate taste than other teas. White tea is the least processed.

Brew white tea with water reaching the first hint of steam, around 150-170 degrees. Steep for 1-2 minutes. As with any tea, brewing times vary according to personal preference.

AS FOR EVERY TASTE

Our passion for quality teas is the hallmark of Stash Tea. We purchase from the premier tea estates of the world, sampling hundreds of teas but selecting only a handful for our customers. We search for unique, often rare, and above all, exceptional teas to share with you. And for our herbal and flavored blends, we purchase herbs and spices whole from the world's best sources and mill them right before blending for superior flavor.

GUAYUSA

Energy from Ecuador

Guayusa (pronounced guhy-you-sa) is a rare, naturally caffeinated herbal tea produced from the leaves of a holly tree (Ilex guayusa) native to the Amazon rainforest of Ecuador. It has been part of the local culture and cultivated for over 2000 years, treasured for its unique balance of caffeine, antioxidants, vitamins and amino acids.*

Guayusa is grown and hand-picked by local farmers from the rich soil under the canopy of the Amazon Rainforest. Your purchase of Guayusa supports these small farms and the local community, and helps the Amazon Rainforest thrive.

TASTING NOTES: Naturally smooth, never bitter. A rich and earthy aroma with a slightly sweet finish.

8g sample size makes 3-4 cups • 100g makes 45-50 cups

Caffeine Content: Guayusa is naturally caffeinated and has an energizing effect similar to coffee, tea and Yerba Mate. Unlike coffee or other energy drinks, Guayusa provides balanced energy without the jitters or the sudden crash commonly associated with caffeinated drinks. Its catechins provide a slow release of caffeine for awake and sustainable energy.

* Our supplier has completed the compound testing of Guayusa confirming that the plant is rich in amino acids, antioxidants, and methylxantine alkaloids (including caffeine, theophylline, and theobromine).

AUTHENTIC CHINESE YIXING TEAWARE

Whimsical works of art yet completely functional, Yixing (pronounced ee-shing) teapots first appeared centuries ago in the Yixing region of China. This region is the world's only source for the unique clay, called purple clay, from which these teapots are made. Yixing teapots are particularly valued due to the porous nature of this clay. Since the inside of the teapots are left uncoated, they eventually absorb the flavor, smell, and color of the tea. In addition, the clay, once fired, contains tiny air pockets that provide insulation and enhance the taste and aroma of fine tea.
